Grant Merritt, Duluth, a sophomore at UMD, will fly to New York today to attend a Christian Citizenship Seminar.

The Seminar will begin Sunday with the topic of discussion being the United Nations. The students will also tour the United Nation's building and meet several prominent United Nations leaders.

The group will travel by train on Tuesday to Washington D. C. where they will witness the Congress in action. Senator Homer Ferguson and Supreme Court Justice William Douglas will speak before the group on civil liberties.

Merritt will return to Duluth by plane on Sunday, Feb. 8.

"Twelfth Night" Opening Set Next Wednesday

A departure from typical stage presentations of today is planned by UMD's Theater director, Dr. Harold L. Hayes, in the winter production Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Feb. 4 through 7.

He will convert the gymnasium of Main building into a "theater in the round," also known as "arena staging."

Dr. Hayes notes that the origin of the "round" probably was the prehistoric camp fire around which ancient huntsmen gathered to exchange stories and stage ritualistic ceremonies.

It will be the first time, to the knowledge of the UMD theater head that "Twelfth Night" will have been staged "in the round."

Evanson's Orchestra To Play at Sno-Ball

Grant Merritt, sophomore class president, has announced completion of plans for the annual Sno-Week Sno-ball.

Music for the semi-formal dance, to be held Friday, Feb. 13, will be furnished by Terry Evanson and his orchestra.

All students (male) are urged to start a beard.

Sno Week doesn't start until Feb. 9, so there's still time to get some chin shrubbery says Ted Waldo. "Besides, think of the time saved by not shaving."

Jerry Anderson and Waldo, co-chairmen of Sno-Week, both send a note of apology to campus coeds concerning beards and hope that they won't be too hard on the whiskered ones.

Sno-Queen candidates have been coming in from various sponsoring organizations according to Bob Juneo and Ron Kramnic, contest co-chairmen. As in previous years pictures of the candidates will be sent to Gov. Anderson who will choose a Sno-Queen from them.

It also will be UMD's first attempt at such staging.

Gay decorations will change the gymnasium's bare appearance to one of holiday atmosphere. At intermission, pages will sell fruits, candies and other delicacies to the audience in keeping with early presentations of this kind.

A narrator will appear in the production, also an innovation for a UMD play. He will introduce main characters, explain the mood and setting and the theme of the play.

The play itself involves a double case of mistaken identity in which twin brother Sebastian and sister Viola are the central figures. The comic action becomes more and more complicated as Viola, masquerading as a man, is wooed by Olivia. But the identities are finally cleared up to the satisfaction and happiness of all.

Students in the cast are: Donald Sundquist, Wilfred Sweney, Duane Ganyo, Lowell Eckberg, Dennis LaRoque, Karl Kasberg, Delwin Cahoon, Gordon Brockway, Marilyn Abalan, Rose Marie Burley, Alyce Claire Wellberg, and J. Nickerson Bailey.

Let Minors Vote--Say UMD Students In Political Forum, Statesman Poll

A majority of UMD students believe that 18-year-olds should be allowed to vote according to a poll conducted jointly last Friday by the Democratic-Republican Forum and the Statesman.

The poll, conducted on a roving reporter basis, represents a sound sampling of over one-third of the students' opinions on this very important question. Nearly 450 students were polled, with 260 answering "yes" to the question, "Do you think 18-year-olds should be given the right to vote". Only 159 of the students replied in the negative. Another 28 were undecided on the matter.

Although there was no special attempt made to record the reasons for the answers, some impressions were gathered.

Many students believed that the right to vote should be given to young people because they are required to join the military, indicating that they are also ready for voting responsibility.

Other students stated that because those high school graduates, who do not go on to college, assume many adult responsibilities at that age might just as well be given this franchise while their minds are still stimulated by their studies of history and politics in high school.

Some students answered "yes" but added the reservation that persons below 21 should have to pass a test before being allowed to vote. Many voted against granting the franchise at that age because they felt that at 18 a person does not have the knowledge or the experience to vote intelligently.

Both organizations that conducted the poll announced that they were pleased with the poll itself, not only because student opinion was revealed but because, in many cases, the question involved much intelligent discussion.

Both the Forum and Statesman stated that they plan to conduct future polls in order to stimulate student thinking on significant questions at all levels of government.

Dinner Appointed ROTC Cadet Colonel

Bernard Dinner, political science major at UMD, will lead the AFROTC 210-man unit as group commanding officer in the corps' 1953 military activities.

Appointments were made last week by Lt. Col. Louis J. LaBarre, professor of air science and tactics. Dinner, who served one year with the Marine Corps, was named cadet colonel. Also appointed to the group staff were Dudley Johnson and William D. Brechlin.

Johnson received appointment as cadet lieutenant colonel and will serve as group executive officer. Cadet Lt. Col. Johnson is a recipient of the Air Force association medal, presented to outstanding academic and military students.

Completing the three-man group staff is William D. Brechlin, appointed cadet major. Cadet Major Brechlin will perform the duties of group adjutant.

Lt. Col. LaBarre, commenting on the new appointments, said, "the staff officers are chosen from senior students on a basis of scholarship, leadership, interest, ability, personality and popularity."

Commanding officers of the group's three squadrons have also been named. Cadet Lt. Colonels William L. Yesberger, Lawrence A. Zika and John C. Morrison will lead the squadrons with Cadet Majors Ernest C. Marchand, Philip C. Eldien and Cadet Captain Jack H. Moe serving as squadron adjutants.

Named to the offices of squadron flight leader were Cadet Captains Richard W. Ojakangas, Gerald T. Cook, Gordon H. Richardson, Richard B. Beckman, Lawrence W. F. Berg, Dale W. Olsen, Leonard H. Jokinen, David Everson and Roland F. Cloutier.

Element leaders this year will be Cadet 1st Lieutenants Ernest W. Hanson, Roland S. Christianson, John R. Sherman, Virgil I. Lindquist, Roy A. Meyer, Edward A. Rapp, Emmett D. Anderson, Wesley A. Ahlberg, Frank R. Mason, Allen R. Iverson, Roger V. Troyer, Cadet 2nd Lieutenants Leo A. LaFrance, Richard E. Lorix, Rodney G. Heffernan and David B. Wood. Three element leaders were chosen from the sophomore class also. They are Master Sergeants Sheldon D. Sorenson, Grant J. Merritt and Steve I. Chantelais.

Cadet 1st Lieutenant Lawrence H. Golberg was chosen to be commanding officer of the band this year.

The drill and leadership activities will begin at the start of the spring quarter and will be climaxed with the annual parade and review expected to take place sometime in the middle of May.

First and second year student's ranks for 1953 will be announced within the next week or so.

Beanies Are Back

Beta Phi Kappa Begins Rushing Week

Tuesday morning of next week, the pledges of Beta Phi Kappa Social Fraternity on the UMD campus will be marked by the traditional grey beanies with Greek cardinal letters. They shall be worn by the men until they have the signatures of each of the 23 present members signed on the hat.

Tomorrow night will mark the third event of the rushing procedure. This informal initiation shall be the acceptance of the applications to pledge the fraternity. At this time the men will be administered the pledge oath and issued their "help" task about the campus and the community. One of the projects in which they shall specifically participate is the conducting of a March of Dimes campaign during the first week in February.

In order that the pledge class might be fairly represented in the fraternity an election of officers will also be conducted. This temporary organization will serve as a governing body and as a medium where they may voice any complaint or suggestion that may arise in the next weeks of the rushing season.

Events previously sponsored by Beta Phi Kappa in this rushing season were an open-house at Tweed hall a stag party and a sleighride at the Fish Fry Lodge.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"Oh, she has a pretty mouth all right, Worthal—It's just that most freshman girls are a little bashful on blind dates."

UMD CAMP and US

by Dick Wallin

Congratulations to Becky Thomason who has been selected as campus correspondent for "Mademoiselle" magazine for the current school year. Becky is among 750 members across the nation, who were selected on the basis of their 1500 word criticisms of August, 1952, College Issue. Now, each of them will complete three assignments for the magazine. The top twenty correspondents will win trips to New York City during the month of June, to help publish the August College Issue.

At 8:30 a. m. last Friday, our editor discovered eight uncreased copies of the Statesman lying in the trash cans which are available near the P. O. boxes. Wonder if he looked again around noon.

The theme for this year's Prom will be "Dreamlure." And, just in case you're interested at this early date, the Prom will be held on Friday, May 22 at the Armory.

Four majorettes and only three majorette uniforms is the situation that exists at UMD. This could be interesting if both the Barker's club and the Music department decide not to kick in for the needed material.

Watch the birdie, and in the Spring we'll see the beardie—so says the Chronicle photographer as he began this week snapping group pictures which contained some well-blossomed beards.

In case you're not yet familiar with what UMD stands for, don't ask anyone, but rather look it up. If you ask, you may hit upon a person who is writing simpleness and will tell you it stands for University of Magnificent Dopes.

After a ten-day layoff from conference play the Bulldogs got back into action last Saturday against Augsburg. The entire conference slowed down a bit during those ten days, giving the other colleges ample time to wind up their semester. It would be nice if, when the schedule is drawn up, the Bulldogs were given some consideration too, so that when the quarter comes to an end, they won't have to play on nights prior to exams. Such a situation could account for the loss to Macalester.

Democratic Spirit Prevails Despite Bustling Cafeteria

Have you ever thought of being in charge of serving lunch to between 275 and 425 people? Most likely not but there is a person on campus who does this every day in addition to planning breakfast and dinner also. She is Lorissa Sheldon, dietician for the cafeteria and also a member of the home economics department.

The cafeteria is open seven days a week for three meals a day and coffee hours, noon hours on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday being the heaviest times for serving. Business like this requires that menus be planned about a week in advance but they are subject to change, considering the availability of foods and the number of people served. Menu ingenuity is also required, so new and different dishes are always being sought.

Seven people are now employed as full-time help in the cafeteria and several others work only part-time. There is no head cook, but instead a democratic spirit prevails and the entire staff works together. A cook is in charge of each of the meat, vegetable, dessert, bread and salad departments.

Bag lunches are being eaten in the cafeteria for the first time this year making the situation very crowded during noon hour. More space will be added in a very short time however. An additional small dining room is now being put in where the laundry area has been. This small dining room will also be available for serving small organizations.

Begun last Wednesday was a weekly coffee hour special—homemade butterscotch rolls. These will be served every Wednesday afternoon during the coffee hour from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.

Freshdog 'Bull Dogge' Observes Duluth Branch from Canine Point of View

My name is Bull Dogge. I'm just a young pup and I have been accused of not being dry behind the ears. On the other hand, people often call me a handsome dog.

I am a freshdog at UMD (University of Manaveling Dogga). It seems only yesterday that I entered the central building on the campus, which is called "Old Plug." I understand it was once called "Old Main" but the big dog at the head decided to bring it to its ultimate end.

This noble building has a myriad of interesting nooks and corners, its possibilities are endless. I have heard that they even had a theatrical cat here a couple of years ago, but he was quickly dispatched after one stage appearance.

I am only now beginning to learn about all the different departments and services. One of the first places I visited was the O.S.P.S.; I thought that was a place where people try to be kind to us, but that might be the W.C.T.U., I'm not sure. Anyway

PERSONALITY PROFILE

By VERN SIMULA

"... and it's so darn interesting. You see, in ceramics I have found a field that combines science and art. For instance, these clay forms. Notice the different glazes. Take various clay samples from the earth and each one will bring out a different glaze."

So went our informal chat. I asked about his life.

"Well, I graduated from Denfeld. When?—a long time ago, let's say. Became a first class carpenter and did a little apprentice work at painting, paper hanging, brick laying and plastering. I bought some old houses and remodeled them in the winter. Had a hobby of raising mink up in Duluth Heights for a while, too.

"The war came along and I enlisted in the Navy—May 1942. Was a naval architect on a transport which was torpedoed at Casablanca, swam away, and then they stuck me on the battleship "U. S. S. New Jersey." She took me to the Pacific theater. Starting with Tarawa, went through 33 major naval battles. Wound up with six campaign ribbons and 14 gold stars. Discharged in October of '45. Started remodeling apartment buildings. That's what I'm doing now in my spare time. I'm an art major with a minor in social studies. Plan to go down to the main campus to take up architectural design.

He took a puff on his pipe and continued.

"Around campus I'm president of the Democratic-Republican Forum. I'm also State Chairman of the Federation of Republican clubs. A liberal Republican is what you might call me. I think a government should be for the people, by the people, and one that serves the greatest amount of people.

"Now take our present government. I'd say it's as perfect a democracy as we can hope for at the present time. I am opposed to high taxes and a big debt. I believe high income people should be allowed to be a little reckless in speculation. As for socialism, whose excuse is practicality and danger inefficiency, I don't think there's too much a chance for it to survive here.

"And a democracy—it's where an individual can go as far as he wants to intellectually, economically, and socially in his ability to work or study."

So says Melvin Keldsen.

Torrid Torrence Scene of Domestic Dilemma Day, Night

"Isn't the mail in yet?" or "Answer the phone," are typical laments heard at Torrence hall. Second floor landing, where eagerly awaited letters and packages are placed, is the most popular spot. The telephone is always ringing and there's a mad dash to answer it or a lull when everyone waits for someone else to get it.

Although there are only two girls to a room (or private rooms, if preferred), it is really like one big happy family, with girls wandering around from room to room at all hours. It's normal to meander to someone else's closet, and sigh, "Gee, can I wear this skirt tonight?"

One is rarely alone. When asked when they can study, one of the girls replied, "You get conditioned to the noise, but of course the best time to study is when your roommate is gone."

Right now the girls are having laundry problems. With the extension of the cafeteria, they have no laundry facilities; the girls are lined up in the bath rooms at all hours washing clothes and hanging them in their rooms. Some girls even go to the extent of going home week ends especially to get their clothes washed.

Friendly and helpful Mrs. Enochson, the housemother, is called upon to do many things, even cutting hair. Occasionally she has to make the rounds and remind the girls to simmer down.

Week ends find the girls coming back loaded with Mother's favorite cake, cookies or candy and they're all set for another week.

I went there because someone told me that they would take care of me if I had a bone to pick. Personally I'd rather pick my bones in a quiet corner, but then I'm new at college life.

I am taking an interesting group of courses. Language is required and I am taking a class called "canine classics." Some of the tomes that I have read are "The Mutt and Me on the Bounty," "A Bone for Adano," "The Last of the Malmutes," "The Old Mammal and the Sausage," and an old dogeared copy of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Another interesting course is psychology. This week we are studying dog-catchers. The other day we psychoanalyzed a terrier friend of mine who thought he was a mastiff. After a complete study of geneology we decided that we couldn't prove that he wasn't, although otherwise he didn't have a paw to stand on.

I also study music at "Tweet hall." My renditions of "Trees" and "Howl you like to Kiss me in the Moonlight" are out of this world when sung to a full moon. I'm not much for art, but I have done some digging around for buried antiques.

In the field of athletics I am very fond of the dash. I also like pard, red heart and kennel ration. However dancing is my strong point. My favorite is the St. Vitus.

Every time we have a test in any class I have a long talk with the instructor. All my cronies wonder why I get such good grades. They don't realize that a little bull goes a long way.

Glass of Wine, Song, and a Few Laughs; Life of Woman Alcoholic

By GENE GRUBA

The door creaked open slowly. I felt a cold draft cool the back of my neck and surge up the legs of my trousers. I turned around.

She stood in the doorway looking from one side of the eatery to the other with a forged nonchalant expression on her disipated face.

Maybe she was 35, 40, or even 50. Her blonde hair clung to the sides of her head sharply contrasting the unorthodox manner in which her eyelids fell and then rose quickly like the motions of a child's yo-yo. When her eyes were open they were tired. They expressed the tiredness that was evident in the wrinkled face that was poorly camouflaged by makeup.

The waitress came, she said, "just coffee, black."

Her left hand was as bare as her face. She wore no ring. She was alone save for us and we didn't matter. She was alone and she knew it.

I watched her as she fumbled for a cigarette. She had no light. She looked at the clock on the wall and then at her watch. It was 11:30.

Three Coke Parties Slated Next Week for Sororities

Formal sorority rushing began last Sunday at an inter-sorority tea held at Tweed hall. From now on the sororities will entertain individually beginning with three coke parties to be held on Feb. 3, 4, and 5. On the following Sunday, Feb. 8, the three respective sororities will hold teas. Invitations stating the time and place of the affairs will be in the mail soon.

Julian Bryan to Present Film Lecture Tuesday Night

Two film lectures by Julien Bryan, one of America's foremost authorities on audio-visual educational methods, are scheduled in Duluth Feb. 3 under sponsorship of the Duluth Board of Education, the Duluth Film council and UMD.

A public lecture and film showing on "Turkey and the Middle East" will be presented at 8 p. m. in the Science building. It will be a special evening convocation open to students, staff and public without charge, sponsored by UMD.

Mr. Bryan has been actively engaged in pictures and films ever since he received his first camera at the age of 10. He has photographed Japan, China, Poland, Finland, Germany, the South American countries and other nations.

His most recent films of Yugoslavia and the Middle East countries include glimpses of Yugoslavian family life, the American embassy in operation and Yugoslavian officialdom, and sections on Turkey, Jordan, Jerusalem and Egypt.

The 30,000 feet of new color film, taken during a two months' trip with a crew of five, is regarded as one of the most complete photographic records made in the European and Middle Eastern countries in recent years.

Mr. Bryan, head of the Julien Bryan International Film Foundation, has attained forefront rank among the world's documentary film experts through his intimate camera studies of life in other lands.

Just as her coffee came she looked at the empty stools and then at the full ones. There were two boys, an old man and a cab driver. She was alone!

She drank her coffee. I turned to my hamburger and was engrossed in it as the cold draft hit the back of my neck. The doors opening was announced to my ears. She was gone as she had come, alone!

A hamburger never was very conducive to good thinking, but this time regardless of the stale bun filled with burned hamburger and watered catsup I thought.

I thought of her going back to the bar, refreshed by the cup of coffee, prepared once again to lose her loneliness in alcohol. She was quite aware that all else was useless now.

Once she had been beautiful, once she had been in demand. There had been men at her fingertips. She'd laughed gayly at proposals, why marry one and lose the rest. Life's a song, it's a joke, I love it.

What does a person do when she's alone? She does the things that she enjoyed so much with others.

Maybe a glass of wine, a song, a few laughs. But you can't sing or laugh alone. At least on one glass of wine. Maybe another wine or two. Someone will come and laugh and sing, but now we're drunk aren't we and who wants us when we're drunk!

There's no one here, we're all alone. A cup of coffee to sober up, black coffee. Now we'll feel better won't we. Yes we'll sober up and then people will sing and laugh and even want to be with us. Cigarette? Yes I have a cigarette, but do you have a light?

No light? Who are you, where are you? You were here! We were talking after the wine, but now you're gone. I'm alone!

Did he go back to the bar? Drink my coffee, yes, drink my coffee and then go back to the bar and find him.

No I wasn't talking to myself! He was here. We had coffee together. One cup on the counter! Just one cup! But he was here! Back to the bar. He's there! I'm not alone, I can't be alone!

As I walked home and the sharp wind nipped at my nose I was warm inside. Warm inside because I knew that I would soon feel the warmth of my bed. I knew that my family was awaiting me home. Home in the house where my friends meet. And then my thoughts once again turned to her.

My thoughts turned to a woman whose warmth was now created by wine and whose tears flowed from the lack of it.

I had my life, she had hers. I had my family and friends and she had her wine!

Life was no longer a gay thing to her, but it is to me. Life was no longer a song, a joke, she didn't love it any more.

As I opened the door to the house I felt warmth, not from wine, but from love. And then once again I felt cold from the thought of one who will never feel this warmth again!

CRITIC CORNER

By GORDON THILLMAN

A few comments here and there in a chit-chat sort of way seems to be in order.

Like the "UMD Humanist" this column is also a "first" (for me) and also may be a "last"—shall see!

Speaking in a suggestive sort of way I wonder what the "masses" (those low-brow individuals who love slapstick humor and hate finer and more artistic things) think about the "Humanist"? Actually since these individuals don't count it doesn't seem necessary to question their taste—but I still wonder how they appreciate the current strive of artistic endeavor which of late has been sprinkled with the holy waters of editorial prestige (strictly high-brow and in the minority, of course). Of course, why ask such a question when such a small number will admit that they belong to the lowly and totally depraved masses?

led with the holy waters of editorial prestige (strictly high-brow and in the minority, of course). Of course, why ask such a question when such a small number will admit that they belong to the lowly and totally depraved masses?

Last week Dr. Hayes announced his production of "Twelfth Night" which will be played, beginning next Wednesday and ending Saturday. A few remarks are in order—for the uneducated masses who hate vague poetry, nonsensical plays and gory nightmares.

"Twelfth Night", my dearly beloved ignorami, is a comedy written by William Shakespeare. It is a play which is filled with love, drunkenness, "low-brow humor" and suspense.

There are many sources for the play but specifically, it is based upon a Mardi Gras celebration held in collaboration with Epiphany, a time after Christmas. The setting of the play is gay and festive.

Dr. Hayes plans to really shoot the works this time. A stage which is placed in the center of the gymnasium and is accessible from every direction; decorations throughout the entire gym and even little flower girls are some of the innovations which Dr. Hayes has been planning. A real holiday effect is hoped for in this play.

Incidentally this is, according to Dr. Hayes, the first time any play at UMD has ever been performed in a round in which the audience encircles the stage. This unique development offers many stage directing difficulties but affords the audience a close and more intimate part in the play action. The audience, it is hoped, will feel an air of participation.

"Twelfth Night" is a play of the comedy type which Shakespeare in a structural way has developed to a very high degree. There is good unity of plot and subplots, good relation between characters and almost perfect dialogue. It is an enjoyable play which will be easy to follow and understand—even for us intellectual vacuums who thrive upon humor of the low hairline.

Dr. Mitau Lists Reasons For Eisenhower's Victory

Dr. G. T. Mitau, professor of political science at Macalester College, in a UMD convocation address last Tuesday analyzed the 1952 national elections and made a plea for greater participation of young people in politics.

"Major reasons for General Eisenhower's victory," said Dr. Mitau, "were: the frustrations of the Korean War, desire for change, the feeling that corruption and communism at home were not well handled by the Truman administration, Eisenhower's promise not to turn the clock back, and his charm and status as a national and international leader."

He said it was a personal victory for Eisenhower and not a fundamental shift in ideological alignment.

"Notions destroyed by last fall's election," he said, "were these: a large vote means a Democratic victory, prosperity means reelection of the party in power, big states and young people lean to Democrats."

He cautioned, though, that no one election can with finality prove or disprove a theory.

Dr. Mitau stressed the need of political parties for the "flexibility" and knowledge which college students can offer. "Political activity," he said, "offers students realism—actual application of education, experience in group reconciliation, and a sense of being a part of something big."

Bulldogs Whitewash Gustavus Adolphus

Pucksters Remain Unbeaten In MIAC; Score 16-0 Win

Coach Gordy Eddolls' hockey squad easily romped to their fifth consecutive victory and third in conference play with a 16-0 triumph over a ragged and inexperienced Gustavus Adolphus sextet Wednesday night at the Duluth Curling club.

The Bulldogs are undefeated in conference competition and will seek their fourth loop win tomorrow against Macalester there.

UMD experienced little trouble in the win, peppering 10 goals past the Gustie goalie Roger Carlson, in the first period.

Tommy Anderson started the one-sided game with an unassisted goal after only 42 seconds had elapsed. Ron Scott followed up with a tally at 1:14.

Ron Sjoberg, Joe Kolar, Don Callenger and Anderson made the score 6-0 at the end of seven minutes of play on assists from Bob Bostrom, Frank Johnson and Ed Skalko.

Skalko's goal at 10:41 was perhaps the most spectacular of the entire game. Two UMD forwards were penalized, leaving only four Bulldogs on the ice. Skalko picked up a pass from Callenger and skated through the entire Gustie defense for the score.

Bob Apostal, Skip High and John Mitchell wound up the first period scoring.

UMD took things easy in the second canto, Bob Juneo tallying that period's lone goal at 13:53.

Scoring picked up in the final period as Apostal, Jim Krysiak, Juneo and Skalko tallied five goals, Skalko scoring twice.

Skalko grabbed the individual scoring honors with the hat trick and two assists.

Chuck Hiti, Mel Koivisto Set Scoring Pace as Cagers Win Fifth Loop Tilt

UMD's resurging Bulldogs completely outclassed a highly-regarded Gustavus Adolphus team, 89-62, Wednesday at the Duluth national guard armory before a wildly cheering crowd. The win allowed the Bulldogs to pull into a third-place tie with the Gusties. Both teams sport 5-3 conference slates.

Mel Koivisto opened the scoring with a free throw and after the Gusties knotted the count, Chuck Hiti and Mark Vukelich added three for a 4-1 lead. The Bulldogs led from that point on.

The teams exchanged buckets, Koivisto scoring for UMD. Gustavus came within one point, 6-5, but a flurry of counters by Vukelich, Koivisto and Don Weaver made it 11-5. The Bulldog defense held the Gusties to four free throws while adding six for a 17-9 advantage. Bob Seikkula, Weaver, Koivisto and Vukelich scored.

A Gustavus fielder made it 17-11, but Vukelich and Hiti ended the first period scoring on a trio of buckets. UMD held the upper hand, 23-11.

The Gusties tallied first in the second period, but then the Bulldogs went to town, mashing the net for 11 straight points before Gustavus broke the ice. Koivisto and Hiti scored quick baskets for a 27-13 lead. Hiti added a charity conversion and Hill a fielder sandwiched by two-pointers by Seikkula and Vukelich. Gustavus then scored, but the margin was 34-15.

Both clubs scored nine points in the final minutes of the second quarter for a 43-24 count at the intermission.

Koivisto stepped into the scoring spotlight during the first five minutes of action in the third period. The hard-driving guard from Esko accounted for seven of the Bulldog's 11 points in that time. In the meanwhile, the Gusties were keeping pace, scoring 10 points, making the score 54-34.

Again the Bulldogs went on a scoring spree, tallying 13 counters while limiting Gustavus to three, all on free throws. UMD gathered five straight gifts before Hiti potted a fielder. Almer contributed his first field goal. Weaver ended the period with four consecutive counters. The Bulldogs led, 67-37, as the final chapter started.

The Bulldogs doubled the Gusties scoring in the early minutes of action. Hiti, UMD's top conference scorer from Gilbert, took over where Koivisto and Weaver left off, meshing the nets for seven points on two neat goals and a trio of charity conversions. Weaver and Almer combined for five as UMD widened the margin to 35 points, 79-44.

UMD still held the margin with only several minutes remaining, 85-50. Almer garnered a fielder and charity toss, John McKeag a tip-in and Seikkula a free throw.

Coach Joe Gerlach emptied the bench of reserves who tallied the final four points, Joe Hussey scoring the finale. Gustavus added a dozen quick points in the remaining time. The final score: UMD 89, Gustavus Adolphus 62.

As in the victory over St. Mary's, the Bulldogs displayed a well-balanced scoring attack with four players hitting ten or more points. Hiti set the pace with 21 counters and was followed by Koivisto who hit for 16. Weaver enjoyed his best scoring night with 14. Vukelich added 12 to the winning cause.

Although Hill saw limited action, he helped break the game wide open in the second period with his defensive rebound work. Hill sank two long shots in that canto as well.

The Bulldogs consistently out-rebounded the taller Gusties, Weaver, Vukelich and Seikkula grabbing most of the rebounds. UMD's tight defense held Gustavus to 18 field goals, allowing only 6 in the first half while scoring 16 themselves.

Johnny Patzwald paced the Gusties with 11 counters. The Bulldogs travel to Macalester tomorrow.

BARKERS PLAN BUS TRIPS

"UMD's victory over Gustavus should assure a bus load of fans who will make the trip to Macalester tomorrow afternoon," commented Virginia Christie president of the Barker's club after the Bulldogs triumph over Gustavus. Virginia added that there might be seating space available and she requested that interested students contact her immediately.

The Barker's have chartered a Greyhound bus for the trip with the cost per person being only $2.65 for the round trip. The bus will leave from the campus Saturday afternoon and will return to Duluth immediately after the ball game.

Another trip is being planned next month for the Hamline game on the Piper's home floor in St. Paul. Students interested in attending this game should contact Virginia now to assure themselves of seats.

In the fall of 1951 when UMD produced a title contending football team, the Barker's also sponsored two bus trips, one to the St. Thomas game and the other to the Gustavus tilt.

"Both trips," stated Virginia, "were tremendous successes and I know everyone had a good time. Just ask the students who made those trips."

Cloquet Radio Station Airs Gustavus Game

Freeman Johansen, a UMD student, and Harry Newby, well-known sports personality in this area, broadcast a play-by-play of the UMD-Gustavus basketball game over radio station WKLK, Cloquet.

University personnel who were on the air at halftime were Dr. Chester Wood, OSFS director, Dr. Raymond Darland and Lewis Rickert, UMD athletic director.

Johansen and Newby stated that they will probably broadcast several future UMD home games.

Assistantships. Fellowships Offered at Graduate School

Assistantships and Fellowships in the Graduate school at the University of Minnesota are available to interested students.

Over 1,500 awards are available in 75 different fields. Applications are due on Feb. 15, 1953.

Announcements are posted on the second floor bulletin board, Main.

SPORTS HIGHLIGHTS

By DICK SIPOLA

Excuse us! Last week we were foolish enough to attempt predicting UMD basketball results. We even went so far as to call the Augsburg quintet "impotent." So what happens? The Auggies won their second conference victory of the season at the Bulldog's expense 84-70 last Saturday night. We called the St. Mary's-UMD game a toss-up, while leaning a bit towards the Redmen. The score: UMD 75, St. Mary's 62. As for the Gustavus game we were more than surprised (and pleased) with UMD's overwhelming victory. If the Bulldogs can finish the season with a .500 or better percentage, coaches, players and fans should be well pleased with the improvement over last year's showing. The addition of Dick Hill, Ron Johnson and Dick Almer seems to have given the squad a shot in the arm and play is improving steadily. Things are definitely brighter on the basketball scene. Tomorrow night Coach Joe Gerlach's squad travels to St. Paul for a return match with Macalester.

UMD Pucksters Whip Huskies For Fourth Straight Victory

The Bulldogs racked up their fourth straight victory last Saturday night as they defeated the St. Cloud Huskies 3-2. UMD grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first period, added another tally in the second period, and except for a lull in the third period had complete command of the game.

Again Coach Eddolls displayed his team as a group of highly capable individuals blended into a closely knit unit. They employed a style analogous to a pressing defense in basketball to keep the puck in scoring position throughout most of the game.

Frank Johnson and Ron Sjoberg each broke away in the first period for unassisted goals. The third goal came in the second period on a beautiful pass from John Mitchell to Skip High who flipped it into the net.

The game was interrupted in the first period when the St. Cloud goalie-coach, George Martin, and his team walked off the ice. In the last period a pugilistic exhibition in front of the St. Cloud goal halted the game briefly.

The hockey team also takes a jaunt to St. Paul to meet the powerful Macalester sextet in a game which may decide the conference title. The Macs are undefeated but will face a hustling, steady-playing Bulldog sextet which is, like the basketball squad, attracting much attention in Minnesota sporting circles.

GOPHER CHANCES GOOD

On the main campus Ozzie Cowles has a great team in action this season. After suffering three conference defeats the Gophers pulled themselves back into early season form and are beginning to make things hot for the league leaders. The Gophers with a 6-3 conference record face Michigan State tomorrow night. They must beat the Spartans to retain sole possession of third place. The Gophers have a well-balanced squad that plays terrific defensive ball. The scoring is always well divided although the outstanding threat is sophomore guard Chuck Mencil. Averaging over 19 points per game, Mencil will probably break all Minnesota scoring records before his collegiate career ends. Mencil is ably assisted by such stalwarts as Ed Kalafat, Bob Gelle, Dave Weiss and Duluth's own Buzz Bennett, who have all hit for double figures in several games. Should Indiana, currently undefeated, and Illinois which has already dropped one game to the Gophers this season, slip, maybe the Cowles cagers can still grab that elusive Big Ten crown.

Hovland Wins First Place In Central U. S. Ski Meet

UMD ski coach George Hovland captured the Central U. S. Ski association cross country ski meet last Saturday at the Bush Lake course in Minneapolis. Hovland's winning time was 1:20.45.

Two members of the Bulldog ski team, Don Nygaard and Paul Vesterstein, also placed. Nygaard finished in a tie for fourth while Vesterstein placed sixth. Coach Chuck Banks finished seventh.

Branch Hoopsters Face Macalester; Gustavus Tomorrow, Thursday

Two games are on the UMD conference slate within the next week, starting tomorrow night against Macalester on the Scots court and following up next Thursday at Gustavus Adolphus.

The dangerous Macs, who likewise upset St. Thomas, were victors in the initial counter at the armory, 72-67, as their "Celestial Twins," Capt. Floyd Olson and Johnny Burger, both from Gilbert, stymied the Bulldogs with their accurate shooting.

Dick Hill, who has been a stalwart in recent games did not see action against Macalester in the first tilt but will be in uniform tonight. Hill's court prowess has

St. Olaf Ski Meet Postponed; Another Tentatively Slated

The St. Olaf Open Invitational 4-event ski meet, originally scheduled next Thursday has been postponed to Feb. 19.

However, a 4-event meet may be held at St. Olaf next Thursday with St. Olaf, Carleton, Gustavus, the University of Minnesota, UMD and a college from Colorado competing. Should this meet materialize, the entire UMD ski team will travel to Northfield and the eight best competitors will be selected to represent UMD at the Central USIC 4-event championship meet at Houghton, Michigan on Feb. 7 and 8.

Coaching the UMD slabsters are George Hovland and Chuck Banks, both of whom placed in the recent cross-country meet in Minneapolis.

Bulldog Five Surprises St. Mary's; Four Branchmen Hit Double Figures

The UMD Bulldogs gained sweet revenge for a 110.99 lacing at St. Mary's earlier in the season with a 75.62 upset over Pat Costello and Co. last Monday at the national guard armory. The win was the Bulldogs fourth in conference play.

Both clubs played on even terms in the first half, UMD holding the edge, 20-17, at the

Cagers Fail in Crucial Contest; Suffer Loss to Augsburg in Close Game

Coach Joe Gerlach's cagers failed to gain their fourth straight conference win, dropping an 84-70 decision to Augsburg last Saturday.

The margin of 14 points did not reflect the closeness of the contest as the Auggies pulled away in the last three minutes with the aid of the three minute foul rule. The Bulldogs were trailing by only one point when the foul rule went into effect. Augsburg went into a control game and forced the Bulldogs to foul.

UMD trailed throughout, 25-23, at the quarter, 45-40, at half-time and 57-55 at the three-period mark.

Pacing the Bulldogs were Chuck Hiti with 26 points and Mark Vukelich with 18.

Augsburg's Captain Don Reimer boosted his conference scoring average, notching 33 points on 11 field goals and the same number of charity tosses.

The defeat was UMD's third in conference play and Augsburg's second loop win.

quarter and the Redmen coming back to tie, 35-35, at half-time.

The Maroon and Gold took complete command in the third chapter, rolling up 23 counters while limiting St. Mary's to 13 for a comfortable 58-48 lead as the final canto started. Mark Vukelich, 6-4 center from Gilbert and Eveleth J. C., set the scoring pace with 9 points, but it was the effective teamwork of the entire club that spelled doom for St. Mary's.

Don Weaver and Dick Hill spun a defensive web around Costello, holding the left-hand jump shot artist to 4 points in that canto. Hill was again a bear on defensive rebounding and he and Mel Koivisto employed deceptive passing to feed UMD's scoring aces, Charlie Hiti and Vukelich.

Action slowed down considerably in the final period as UMD elected to play a possessive brand of ball. The Redmen moved into a pressing defense, fouling frequently as the Bulldogs dropped in nine charity tosses.

Coach Joe Gerlach used the same five during the entire second half with the exception of Hill who was relieved late in the third period after being charged with his fourth foul.

Four Bulldogs scored ten or more points, Hiti and Vukelich leading with 19 and 18, respectively, and Hill and Koivisto scoring a dozen each.

Costello, the MIAC scoring leader, protected his lead with a 28 point scoring output, most of his fielders coming on jump shots. Guard Hugh Gorman scored 15 for the loser.

Bulldog Winning Streak Snapped by Yellowjackets

UMD's four game winning streak against collegiate competition was snapped by the Superior State Teacher's Yellowjackets, 68-59, last week on the 'Jacket's home court.

The Bulldogs trailed throughout except for a short time in the final chapter when they took the lead on three occasions. However, three starters, Mark Vukelich, Mel Koivisto and Don Weaver, fouled out, in quick succession. The Yellowjackets retaliated to take a lead which they stretched to nine points in the closing minutes.

Charlie Hiti, UMD's top scorer, had his poorest scoring night of the season, hitting for only five points. Capturing scoring laurels for the Bulldogs were Vukelich with 16 and Jerry Weld 14.

Pacing the 'Jackets were Jack Hulmer and Derrick Walker, the former tallying 18 and the latter 16.

Bulldog scoring—Hiti 5, Weld 14, Seikkula 2, Vukelich 16, McKeag 6, Weaver 6, Almer 2, Hussey 2, Koivisto 6, Johnson 0.

The "Omar Khayyam" of Rudy Ott

The following verses were found in a beer bottle floating in the Duluth ship canal. They are thought to be the work of the late Rudy Ott, right, local poet.

OTT

When I was just a kid I often went To listen to some temperance argument;
The words they said were nice,
but still I find
The sky is bluest when my elbow's bent.

I sometimes think that never glows so red
The nose, as from a bad cold in the head;
I'm satisfied with less: My rosy
hues
Come in a glass that has a frothy head.

Once, in a book of verses that I read,
"A loaf of bread, a jug of wine,"
it said,
"A wilderness and you are what I want."
It all looks great to me, but who needs bread?

"Drink," says the poet (what a lovely word),
"The bird is on the wing!"—Now,
that's absurd;
I may be drunk, but not as drunk as he,
I know darn well the wing is on the bird!

I guess that I have strewn a lot of sin
Along the pathway I have wandered in
But if I had the chance to chose my fate,
I'd die by drowning in a pit of gin.

Modern Parable

There was once a merchant of Jerusalem named Jonathan.
One day, traveling alone toward Jericho, he fell among thieves.
They robbed him of goods and money, and left him, badly beaten and close to death, in a ditch by the roadside.

Many travellers passed him
by, ignoring his pitiful entreaties. He had given up all hope, and made good his peace with God, when a stranger stopped and offered him succor. He dressed Jonathan's wounds, and stood watch over him until his strength returned.

"You have saved my life,"
said Jonathan, and my gratitude is without measure. Return with me to my home and be my honored guest."

"I cannot," said the stranger
sadly. My fathers wronged yours 500 years ago, and we are enemies by tradition. You see, I am a Samaritan."

"A Samaritan!" exclaimed Jonathan. And he smote the stranger on the mouth,
robbed him of goods and money,
and left him, badly beaten and close to death, in a ditch by the roadside. —H. T.

IMAGINATION

IN THE OFFICE of the Director of the Population and Progress Division of the Third Inter-galactic Federation, Doctor Tarm Arman, head of Psychological Research, is engaged in mild dispute with his immediate superior.

"No, Zath, I'm almost positive. It won't work."

"But it might! Think Tarm. The progress that could be made if only it does work. You've seen the fantastic amount of time and labor consumed in the preparation for the population of just one—a single planet."

"Yes—thousands, raised and conditioned from infancy, countless hours spent on each individual in training, and even then none of our attempts have proved completely successful. Zath, we can't accomplish with thousands what you want to try with two—"

"That's just it. You've given a perfect presentation of my case.
Even with our elaborate plans we can't achieve perfection. Granted it will take much longer and perhaps not be even near as successful as the others, but the fact that we will be able to plant millions of untouched worlds in the time that before we could only plant hundreds will easily compensate."

"But a whole race, descended from two! Psychological research has proved how confused the teachings of parents to children become in but a few generations, and you want to leave just —boy, I hate to think of the mess."

"Well, anyway Tarm, I fully believe it a worthwhile experiment. Oh, incidentally, its already begun. The Captain received his orders this morning and should have left by now."

"Well, its your baby Zath, and I'm not going to spoil my vacation worrying about it. Ah, four weeks on beautiful Melldina, where I've promised myself not to think of thinking a psychological thought. Good-bye, slave. I'll see you after the passing of four weeks of your sweat and my absolute and complete lazy luxury."

"Ah, shut up.—So long . . ."

THE GREAT GALAXY SHIP decelerated back into being shortly through the rim of the new galaxy. In the complex control room, the Captain walked slowly to the viewing screen. Still so great was their speed, that stars came into sight, grew larger and passed within minutes. The Captain, not looking up, ordered the slowing to star navigation speed of the ship.

One star dominated the screen. A star that no longer appeared a star, but that had taken on the size and blinding glow of a sun.
Between the ship and the sun was a small ball which was slowly growing and taking the form of a shining, green and blue planet.
The Captain gazed at the screen for a moment longer, then turned and beckoned to a man and woman. They came to his side and stared silently into the screen.

"Its beautiful!" the woman gasped.

"Our world," the man said. "Our own world."

They stepped out onto the cool green grass. They breathed deeply of the pure, fragrant air. They looked at the cool blue water.
They turned their eyes upward, and stared at the blue sky, the white clouds, and the warm shining sun, and they felt love, and they were happy.

They said goodbye to the Captain. She kissed him, and he shook his hand. Then they stood and watched as the great ship roared and flamed into the sky.

They turned and walked hand in hand into the world that they had been conditioned to love, and they thought what a wonderful man the Captain was.

For he had brought them here. . . .

"HA! A MASTER YET A SLAVE!"

"Well, well. So the wandering seeker of pleasure has returned. How are ya, Tarm?"

"Swell. Boy did I have a wonderful time."

"Great. I'll drop over tonight and you can tell me about it."

"Fine. Oh, say, Zath, I got to thinking about your little experiment on the trip back. I'd like to talk to the captain of that ship. I'd like to ask him what he noticed in their reaction. Would he be in?"

"Why yes, I think so. He doesn't have another flight scheduled for a couple of weeks. You'll be able to find him almost any day over at flight headquarters. Just a minute, I'll look up his name
... Ah—here it is. Flight Commander No. 436, Farlaam Godd . . ."
